On November 19, 2012, defendant Duffy Dashner was released on a $150,000 bond, $100,000 of which was secured by his mother. He was ordered to reside in the third party custody of an individual who signed his bond. As a condition of release, Mr. Dashner was placed on electronic monitoring. Mr. Dashner is currently residing in the home designated on his bond, he has returned to work, and he has had no violations of his conditions of supervision. He is requesting that the Court permit him to travel to Wisconsin with his mother from December 21 through December 28 so he can visit his daughter for Christmas. Mr. Dashner does not currently have an ID card. In order to facilitate travel, he requests that his mother be permitted to take custody of his passport so that he can get through airport security on the flights to and from Wisconsin. Upon his return to California, the passport will be returned to pretrial services. In addition, Mr. Dashner will need to have his electronic monitoring equipment

1 disconnected so he can fly. He is proposing to work with the pretrial services office to set dates 2 and times to have the electronic monitoring equipment disconnected before he leaves and 3 reconnected when he returns. Pretrial Services Officer Brad Wilson is in agreement with this 4 proposal. The government has no objection.
